A RACE FOR A WIFE.

[BY JUDGE CLARK.]

Effic Morris was the only child of a wealthy farmer, and Solomon Dreef and Jonas Bilkes were suitors for her

As a landed proprietor, Mr. Dreef was naturally the choice of Lifie's father, while Mr. Bilkes, the stylish merchant, quite as naturally found favor in the sight of her mother. But Effic sided with neither party. Her choice was George Wilson, whom she rau off with and married in spite of the consequences. He was not rich but was rising in his profession, and able to supply his pertty wife with all needed comfort. Mr. Morris was much incensed at his daughter's disobedience, and in the height of his displeasure, called in his lawyer and altered his will. After a suitable life provision for his wife, be gave the whole of his property to his neuliew, whom he scarce knew, instead of leaving it to Effic, as he had all Telomacraphone.

Some time since, the people were all agog about the strange discovery of the transmission of cound. Science called it the Teleptrone, and said it berg prewas an easy thing to talk in a whisper a mile apart intelligibly, and the voice natural, even its modulation perfect. Singing and music upon iustraments repeated as correctly as though the performance was being transacted in the same room. This, we admit, taxed our credulity; but we thought over the strange announcement, years ago, of railway trains Phipps premium coursing the land with tonnage equal to water vessels; then the telegraph flashing intelligence through the Atlantic secan, and Washington City and Londou communicating. This has beder at it. Nevertheless, it is wondercourse, intelligibly conducted. Money.

Of very ancient origin is money. It is mentioned as a medium of commerce in the Bible, in Genesie axiii, where Abrahum purchased a field as a sepul-chre for Sarah, in the year 2,139 Homer speaks of brass money as existing 1,184 B. C. The invention of coun is ascribed to the Lyslians. Their mon; was used in Sparta, and iron and tin is Great Britian Julius Casar was the first person who obtained the express per mission of the Senate to place his image on the Roman coins. Earlier they had placed the image of their deities on them The Romane called their silver moneta breause it was coined in the temple of Juno Moneta, 269 B. C. Money has been tuade of ditierent materiale, and even of the leather. It was made of pastel ord by the Hollander as late as 1545. The North American Imliane, in early times, need shells etring together, which they called wampam. Coms were made were partly square, ollong, and round, until the Mildle Ages, since when, round coins are only used. The names of many obsolete pieces are met with in Shakeejears and some other English authors, such as the angel, augelot, noble, great guinea, etc. The first silver coin struck guinea, etc. The first silver coin srinck in Eng and was the ancient silver penny. It was struck with a cross so deeply in dented thus it might be easily parted into two for hallpeuce and into four les farthinge.
